Executive summary

Purpose

1. This document lists the membership of the main and sub-panels for the 2008 Research Assessment Exercise (RAE2008). The panels will assess the quality of research in submissions to RAE2008.

Key points

2. For the purpose of RAE2008, each academic discipline is assigned to one of 67 units of assessment (UOAs). There is a two-tier panel system: 67 sub-panels of experts, one for each UOA, work under the guidance of 15 main panels. Under each main panel are broadly cognate disciplines whose subjects have similar approaches to research.

3. Panel members are experts drawn from higher education institutions (HEIs) and the wider research community, and are nominated by subject associations and other stakeholder organisations. Each main panel and sub-panel has stipulated criteria and working methods that they will adhere to in making assessments: these were published in January 2006 as RAE 01/2006: RAE2008: Panel criteria and working methods.

4. This list of panel membership is correct at the time of going to print. Should any member retire from the panel or be replaced during 2008, we will update the electronic list available at www.rae.ac.uk under 'Panels'.

Action required

5. This document is for information and guidance. No action is required.

Introduction

6. This document contains details of the membership of the main and sub-panels which will peer review the research quality of submissions to RAE2008. Information about the process by which panel members were appointed is in RAE 03/2004: Units of assessment and recruitment of panel members.
7. Since May 2005, a dynamic version of the panel membership has been available in Excel spreadsheet format on the RAE2008 web-site www.rae.ac.uk under 'Panels'. This list is updated on a regular basis.
8. This document includes updates to the panel membership since the panels were first established in 2004.
9. The panel membership is now set for the assessment phase of the exercise. We do not anticipate changes to the published panel membership except in extreme circumstances, for example if a member is no longer able to serve due to ill health and is therefore replaced.

Section 1: Role of the panels

Main panels

10. There are 15 main panels (A-O), each of which work with a manageable, broadly cognate group of no fewer than three sub-panels. The main panel is made up of:

- the chair
- the chairs of the sub-panels within the main panel grouping (between three and eight sub-panels per main panel area)
- international experts who act as full panel members
- where appropriate and possible, other people with specific expertise and observers.

11. The main panel provides leadership and guidance to the sub-panels on their approach to the assessment process; main panels were also responsible for approving the sub-panel criteria for assessment and working methods. The main panel will work closely with the sub-panels throughout the assessment period in order to ensure consistency in application of quality standards, common procedures and equal opportunities guidance. In signing off the quality profiles assigned to the submissions, the main panels will confirm that in their view each of the sub-panels has adopted reasonable and consistent subject-specific approaches to the assessment of all forms of research, including basic, applied practice-based and interdisciplinary research. The main panel will also produce a final report on the state of research in the disciplines covered by the sub-panels.

Main panel chairs

12. The main panel chair guides the main and relevant sub-panels to ensure that they complete the assessment within the framework and according to the published criteria and working methods. The overriding responsibility of the main panel chair is to ensure that throughout the exercise, panels and sub-panels adhere to the key principles that govern the RAE2008 as set out in RAE 03/2005: Guidance on submissions.

International panel members

13. International panel members were appointed by the same nominations process as other panel members. International members serve on the main panels to bring an international perspective to the endorsement of the quality profiles proposed by the related sub-panels. They were invited to these posts as practising researchers with a very high level of knowledge of and expertise in research across a broad discipline area internationally, including substantial experience in at least one country outside the UK.

Sub-panels

14. Sub-panels are responsible for the detailed assessment of research submissions to the corresponding unit of assessment. Prior to this detailed assessment, sub-panels were responsible for producing draft criteria for assessment and working methods for approval by the main panel. They were guided in this by the RAE team. The sub-panels have a duty to work within the agreed criteria and in collaboration with the main panel, to produce draft quality profiles and associated feedback for all submissions made to them. In doing so, they will take advice where necessary from other sub-panels via the cross-referral process, or specialist advisors.

Specialist advisors

15. Specialist advisors will be appointed where a sub-panel has to assess either significant work in a sub-disciplinary area that crosses the boundaries of units of assessment, or work that the members of the sub-panel do not collectively have the expertise to assess.

Panel advisors and secretaries

16. Each main panel area – the main panel, and its associated sub-panels – has dedicated secretariat support for the assessment phase. This support comprises a panel advisor and panel secretary, each seconded from UK HEIs. The advisor will provide policy and procedural advice to the panel, and is seconded on a part-time basis in 2008 to support the main panel area. The secretary will provide policy, procedural and secretariat support, and is seconded on a full-time basis in 2008 to work with the main panel area. The advisor will take shadow minutes and provide secretariat support if the secretary has to leave the meeting, for example if an institution which the secretary has a conflict of interest in is being discussed.

Section 2: Appointment of membership of panels

17. Main panel chairs were appointed following advertisement of these posts and an application process in early 2004.

18. Sub-panel chairs and panel members were nominated by nominating bodies who are stakeholders in the exercise, such as learned societies, professional bodies and other organisations with an interest in research, including research users. The RAE team undertook a nominations exercise in 2004 to secure nominations from these bodies. HEIs were not eligible to act as nominating bodies.

19. The funding bodies' chief executives appointed 67 sub-panel chairs after considering the nominations for individuals and taking advice in confidence from the relevant main panel chairs. Similarly, sub-panel members were appointed by the funding bodies' chief executives from among those nominated, taking account of the weight of nominations and advice from the relevant sub-panel and main panel chairs. In appointing sub-panel members, the funding bodies aimed to ensure that the collective expertise of each sub-panel was appropriate for the unit of assessment, and that the overall body of members reflected the diversity of the UK research community. Details of the selection process for sub-panel chairs and panel membership are in RAE 03/2004: Units of assessment and recruitment of panel members.

20. Panel members, including main and sub-panel chairs, may not be the head of a UK HEI. In cases where a panel member has been appointed to a vice-chancellor or principal post in a UK HEI since the establishment of RAE2008 panels, they have stepped down from the panel and a suitable replacement has been sought.

21. Since 2004, the panel membership has changed slightly to accommodate circumstances where panel members have had to relinquish their post, or further expertise has been required. Whenever we have appointed new panel members, it was done in consultation with one or more relevant stakeholder bodies, either by returning to the original nominations for panels, or – where none of the original nominees were appropriate – by contacting nominating bodies to secure further nominations.

22. Following the initial recruitment of panel members, the panel membership was published on the RAE2008 web-site. Since then, the online list has been regularly updated to reflect changes in the membership.

23. In summer 2006, the RAE team undertook equal opportunities monitoring of all panel members serving in the RAE 2008. A summary report of this exercise and the results is available on the RAE web-site, www.rae.ac.uk, under 'Panels'.

24. Specialist advisors will be appointed following nominations from nominating bodies and advice from the panel chair, as with panel membership appointments.
